The Ordinance Committee will present to the Town Council, usually with public comments. Next step is the Town Council will vote on it.
- Dana Colihan from the Toxics Action Center in Portland contacted Nancy and has offered help in promoting an initiative aimed at large numbers of people. They have helped in South Portland, and their help is free. The option was left open. Kimberly is planning to work with Julie Rosenbach of South Portland, and Kimberly will explore education outreach help with Julie.
- Next steps for education will be:
  - April 10, at Lunt Auditorium from 6-8 PM, the CCSWCD will present a talk on Healthy Lawn Care. Kimberly printed flyers for the talk, and committee members will distribute them around town.
  - Chad Skillin will give a talk at Skillins, probably in April.
  - Karen spoke with Justin Derry at the Schools, and he mentioned that the elementary school might be the best format for reaching children. Gary Glick at the High School will try to help.
  - Kimberly will get the info packets from South Portland and will create a sustainability website with links to Falmouth recycling and to the Falmouth Conservation Commission. Discussion of whether an ad in the Forecaster would be advantageous. Nancy will speak with Kate Collins from the newspaper. Kimberly referenced the Beyond Pesticides website and the information there.
  - We are still looking for other presenters to give talks.
  - Discussion of whether we as FCC should make overtures to LPAC to help with environmental concerns, including development.
  - Discussion of grant money that was received and hoped to be used for water testing/stream health and is there anything from an operational standpoint that can/should be changed.
- Some discussion on the pace of change and how delays can be frustrating. Perhaps scheduling other public talks could be helpful. Jerry will explore the possibilities.
