Dear Friends and Neighbors,

For two years, a group of dedicated residents has been planning a year-long program filled with educational and entertaining events to commemorate Falmouth’s 300th anniversary of incorporation. Committee members — with suggestions and assistance from community organizations, businesses, neighbors, friends, and family — have met regularly to consider how best to mark the town’s Tercentennial. The result is Falmouth300 — a series of events and programs designed to Honor the Past, Celebrate the Present, and Invest in the Future of our town.

To facilitate the planning and implementation of this ambitious endeavor, Falmouth300 joined with a number of partner organizations as well as financial sponsors. The efforts of our partners demonstrate the strong ties between the Town, its residents, schools, businesses, service organizations, and cultural institutions. The generous donations of our sponsors helped to fund this endeavor, allowing for a year-long calendar of events and the creation of long-lasting legacy projects. This is truly a community effort.

Special thanks to our sponsors, volunteer committee members, current and past Town Councilors, and Town staff, who all provided invaluable support to the planning of Falmouth300.

Falmouth300 will be educational, entertaining, and enjoyable for all the residents of our community. We invite everyone to join this showcase of Falmouth’s spirit and community pride as we commemorate this historic event.

Sincerely,

Marge Devine, Chair

Resolution No 61-2018

TOWN OF FALMOUTH RESOLUTION
Falmouth’s Tercentennial Year 2018

WHEREAS, Falmouth will soon mark the 300th anniversary of its incorporation as a town in 1718; and

WHEREAS, The Town will commemorate this milestone with a variety of engaging, educational, and community-minded events and activities throughout 2018; and

WHEREAS, the Town’s Ad-Hoc Tercentennial Planning Committee has collaborated with numerous community organizations to create a full calendar of events with something for everyone to enjoy, including lectures, exhibits, musical programs, trail hikes, festivals, dances, tours, and more; and

WHEREAS, the Committee has also overseen the creation of several legacy projects, long-lasting contributions to our community that will live well-beyond 2018; and

WHEREAS, the Council wishes to encourage all Falmouth residents to take the opportunity to Honor the Past, Celebrate the Present, and Invest in the Future, by participating in as many of these activities as possible throughout the coming year; and

WHEREAS, the Council wishes to recognize the continuing efforts of volunteers and Town staff, as well as the support of our sponsors and partners and the generosity of our citizens.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE TOWN COUNCIL OF THE TOWN OF FALMOUTH ASSEMBLED THIS 13th DAY OF NOVEMBER, 2017, THAT:

The Town Council proclaims 2018 as Falmouth’s Tercentennial Year and celebrates with all residents this opportunity to learn about and appreciate the history of our home town, to explore the many resources Falmouth offers us every day, and to become active participants in Falmouth’s future.

Attest:
Ellen Planer, Town Clerk

Date: November 13, 2017

Citizens of the Town of Falmouth, Maine:

Congratulations and best wishes to Falmouth on its 300th birthday!

Falmouth has a long and storied history that predates our own state history. At 300 years old, your town has reached a milestone to remember.

As you celebrate your community and its longevity, it remains important to link the past with the future. We can all learn from our history and marking your 300th year is a wonderful occasion to teach, learn, and celebrate this history.

I wish Falmouth and its citizens many more years of success as an involved community.

Sincerely,

Paul R. LePage
Governor
Town of Falmouth

Dear Friends,

I am pleased to offer my congratulations as you celebrate the tricentennial of the Town of Falmouth. For three centuries your community has played a prominent role in Maine’s history, and Falmouth continues to demonstrate the best qualities of our great state.

In colonial times, Falmouth served as a vital trading post, connecting the local Abenaki tribe to the colonists of New England. Since then, your community has contributed to the Maine economy through the farming, fishing, and shipbuilding industries, all while maintaining the scenic landscape that attracts so many residents and visitors. However, it is not only the natural resources that built this great community; it is the hard work of generations of its citizens from past to present.

The energy that so many have devoted to this exciting year-long community celebration is but one example of the spirit that has been nurtured here for three centuries. This spirit is evident in the planning of town events such as Falmouth Fest and Old Home Days, the Community Picnic and Street Dance, and Incorporation Day and Veterans’ Remembrance. Your town’s civic pride reflected in this momentous occasion is fitting and inspiring.

I congratulate you all as you begin this year of celebration and wish the best for your town in the years to come.

Again, happy 300th birthday!

Sincerely,

Susan M. Collins
United States Senator

Dear Friends,

I am honored to add my voice to those joining to honor the Tricentennial of the Town of Falmouth. Falmouth has a long and proud history, and I am pleased to join with town officials, residents, and the Ad-Hoc Tricentennial Planning Committee to recognize this momentous occasion.

Falmouth is a vibrant Maine town, with a reputation for its safe neighborhoods, quality schools, and natural beauty. The Ad-Hoc Tricentennial Planning Committee’s mission to “Honor the Past, Celebrate the Present, and Invest in the Future” is a wonderful way to mark 300 years of this special town. Celebrating the present by encouraging community spirit and civic pride is a wonderful way for Falmouth citizens to give back to those around them and also a great starting point to invest in the future. Thank you for everything you are doing to make Falmouth and Maine such a great place to call home.

Congratulations for your hard work to recognize this important anniversary.

Best Regards,

Angus S. King, Jr.
United States Senator

Congratulations on a great milestone!
Dear Friends,

It gives me great pleasure to congratulate the Town of Falmouth on its 300th anniversary.

It’s amazing to think how much has changed in the last 300 years. Back then, this was the frontier for English colonists and a dangerous place to live because of hostilities with the French and Native Americans. Since then, treaties have been signed, borders redrawn, and actions taken that live on in history books.

But it’s important to remember the 300 years of Falmouth residents who lived that history and how their lives were touched by events in the nation and world. Generations of local men—and new women, too—have defended our nation. They’ve made their living in mills, farms, offices, and fishing boats. They’ve lived through the hardships of 300 Maine winters and the joys of 300 Maine summers.

What the next 300 years will bring, I couldn’t say. But as the date of Falmouth remains a beautiful place and a lovely community. I don’t expect that to change.

Thank you again for the chance to reflect on this significant milestone.

Take care,

Chellie Pingree

Dear Residents of Falmouth,

I am thrilled to be a part of the celebration marking Falmouth’s 300th Anniversary. Thank you and everyone on the Centennial Planning Committee for your dedication to our town.

I was honored to serve on the Town Council for six years before representing Falmouth in the Maine Senate. This service helped me to get to know a great many people here and build on the great work of Town Councillors who served before me. Falmouth’s core assets - its commitment to high-quality public education, its excellence in public safety and the delivery of municipal services, and its pioneering success in preserving open space and wildlife habitats - are a great source of pride for all of us. I am grateful for the opportunity to continue serving Falmouth in the State Senate, where I am guided by the priorities of the people who live here.

This milestone offers a rare opportunity to reflect on Falmouth’s history and what the town means to us all. I am continually struck by how lucky my family and I are to be a part of this community.

So congratulations again to all of my neighbors and friends. We have the great fortune to be part of a very special town, one which continues to lead the way for many other towns all over Maine. Here’s to another 300 years!

Sincerely,

Cindy Breier

To the Residents of Falmouth:

It is with great pleasure that I write to honor the town of Falmouth as it reaches its 300th anniversary. It is an honor to represent a portion of Falmouth in the Maine House of Representatives, particularly at this time of celebration.

The Ad-hoc Tercentennial Planning Committee has worked hard and done a remarkable job to mark this momentous occasion. I want to congratulate them on their efforts. We all look forward to enjoying the events they have planned.

We are also grateful to local businesses, both for their assistance with the coming-year's festivities and all they have done over the years to support the community.

Finally, thank you to all town employees, as well as those who have ever volunteered their time, their labor and their expertise to help make Falmouth better and to keep it running smoothly each and every day.

Happy 300th birthday, Falmouth! May there be many hundreds more.

Sincerely,

Dear Fellow Falmouth Residents,

It is my great honor to serve the town of Falmouth in the Maine Legislature and to extend my heartfelt congratulations to residents of Falmouth on our town's 300th anniversary.

The tercentennial celebration allows us the opportunity not only to look back on our history with fresh eyes but also to come together to celebrate and reflect on the present while envisioning and charting our future.

Our long history, beginning with the Algonquins, has included a great deal of growth and change over the years. Arthur Mackworth was the town's first European resident, building a house in the 1630s on the Presumpscot River, and the town grew to 62 families by 1783. Today's Falmouth was originally known as "New Casco," until Portland separated in 1786. During this early period the name Falmouth first became associated with the area. Massachusetts renamed the Casco Bay settlements "Falmouth" after a battle in the English Civil War which occurred in Falmouth, England.

From the 1760s to the 1840s, Falmouth was a fairly typical rural Maine town. The Presumpscot River, Piscataqua River and Mason Cove drove sawmills, gristmills and even a shad factory in downtown West Falmouth. Masts were harvested in Falmouth for the British and later Continental Navy. Trolley service from Portland to Falmouth Foreside beginning in 1889 catalyzed the town into the modern era. Following World War II, Falmouth began to transform into the suburbs community recognizable today.

In the span of fifty years, the town's population has skyrocketed from five thousand to more than eleven thousand residents. Today our community, which spans from the ocean on the Foreside to the hills in West Falmouth, has established itself as a community with an outstanding public school system, thriving business districts and civic minded residents who care deeply about our town. With these amazing attributes, Falmouth's future is bright.

My thanks to the Falmouth Town Council, the municipal staff and the Falmouth 300th Organizing Committee and volunteers who have worked tirelessly to make our tercentennial celebration possible.

Happy 300th, Falmouth!

A Look Back at the KICK OFF

Very Merry Falmouth

November 30–December 2, 2017

Falmouth300 launched at Very Merry Falmouth with a spectacular fireworks display presented by . . .

Thank you to our sponsors, partners, and volunteers who made the launch of our tercentennial year a great success.

Our history began in Falmouth with the vision of a local leader who recognized that software could transform the operations of local governments. Over the past five decades, Tyler has evolved and grown as a result of dedicated and hardworking professionals in our community. Today we have over 900 Maine-based employees committed to improving local governments and school districts nationwide through software and services. For more information, please visit tylertech.com.
As we embark upon our 300th year as a community, Falmouth300 asks residents to consider, how do we understand our hometown? How do we perceive our community? Which places speak to us? Which landscapes define us? Where or what is our favorite Falmouth? The answer is as varied and numerous as the individuals who live here.

My Favorite Falmouth is a Falmouth300 multi-media project to articulate and document, through art and word, what makes Falmouth home to the people who live here. What place, landmark, vista, or view defines or personifies Falmouth for you? Residents are invited to submit their art piece or writing in a digital format. Submissions may take many forms including: painting, drawing, sculpture, photography, music, dance, audio, video, poetry, essay, etc. A presentation will be created incorporating these submissions and shown to the public during Falmouth300 events in fall 2018, as well as online via the Falmouth300 website.

This is not a competition. There is no registration fee. There is no jury and there are no prizes. This is just for fun. It is a community project to commemorate and celebrate Our Favorite Falmouth for future generations.

BUT WE DO HAVE SOME RULES:

- A maximum of two entries per person.
- Entries should be submitted in digital format to falmouth300@falmouthme.org with “My Favorite Falmouth Submission” in the subject line.
  - Written submissions and poetry may be included in the body of the email or as attachments (pdf or doc) and should be limited to 200 words.
  - Art submissions (music, art, photography, spoken word, video, etc.) should be included as attachments to the email.
  - Three-dimensional art pieces should be photographed and the scanned photo submitted.
  - Video and audio submissions are limited to 30 seconds.
  - Use the most commonly available digital format for the medium, one that requires no specialized software to open (for example, no Illustrator or Photoshop files).
- In the body of the email include:
  - Name, address, phone, email, age/grade (optional)
  - Title of piece (if any)
  - An optional statement (100 words max.) about your submission.
  - If the piece is specific to a location in Falmouth, please indicate where
- Deadline for entries is: September 15, 2018
- Falmouth300 reserves the right to reject any submission that it deems inappropriate or cannot be easily worked into the format of the multi-media presentation. The goal is to use all submissions, but the final product is dependent upon how many entries are received. Unfortunately, we cannot guarantee that all entries will be included in the presentation.
- Presentation of submissions will take place during one or more Falmouth300 events in late 2018. The multi-media presentation will also be available for viewing online.
- Submissions remain the creative and intellectual property of the creator and will not be used beyond what is identified above unless express permission is sought from the artist/writer.

Native plants are defined as those species that originated here or arrived here without any help from humans. Non-native plants were brought here intentionally or accidentally. When a non-native plant is transported to a new place, it often leaves behind its natural enemies (such as disease or predators) that keep it in check. As a result, some non-native plants become invasive when relocated. Their spread cannot easily be controlled and can impact, and even harm, the native plants growing nearby. This in turn changes the surrounding habitat, which affects wildlife and can even lead to the extinction of some species. We encourage you to work some native plants into your landscape.

Native plants come in all shapes and sizes, offering a wonderful variety to the homeowner. Because they are adapted to local environmental conditions, native plants require far less care and less water, and they provide a natural habitat for native wildlife and important pollinators. Here are a few options to get you started.

EARLIEST INHABITANTS

The story of Falmouth, Maine begins long before its incorporation in 1718. Thousands of years before European explorers arrived in Maine, Native Americans made their home along Casco Bay. Twelve thousand years ago, as glaciers retreated, Paleo-Indians, followed big game into what is now Maine. Between ten thousand and seven thousand years ago, as the climate became more temperate and tundra gave way to wooded forests, Maine’s indigenous populations shifted from a lifestyle of large game hunting to one of seasonal migration. They moved throughout the year between favored locations for hunting, fishing, and food gathering. With the invention of new tools for food processing and improved methods of transportation, Maine’s Indians expanded their diet and began to establish trade networks. With new food sources, their population grew. Another warming trend brought the advent of agricultural production. In southern Maine, Native Peoples harvested corn, beans, and squash. The invention of ceramic pottery brought improved food storage and production, allowing for increased populations living in more permanent settlements along coastal areas.

We do not know what the earliest inhabitants of Casco Bay called themselves. English and French explorers traveling along the coast of Maine in the early 1600s provided the first accounts of the area and the people who lived there, whom they called “Wabanaki,” the Algonquin word for “dawnlanders.” As many as one thousand Wabanaki made their home in a village called Ashamahago, located on the Presumpscot River. Here they tended their farms, harvested clams, fished the ocean and rivers, and hunted deer and wild fowl. The peaceful existence of this community was not long lasting. A decade-long war against neighboring tribes and a series of epidemics—diseases introduced by European settlers—decimated Maine’s indigenous population. By the time the first Europeans established settlements in the Casco Bay area, the native population was severely reduced.

A TIME OF CONFLICT

The first European settler in the Casco Bay region was Christopher Levett who, in 1623, established an outpost on an island in Casco Bay. In his journal, Levett recounts his travel up the Presumpscot River to the falls where he met and was entertained in the home of Skitterygusset, the sachem (leader) of the Presumpscot. Arthur Mackworth was the first settler in what is today’s Falmouth. He arrived around 1632 and secured title to Mackworth Island, the nearby point, and a significant parcel of land on the east bank of the Presumpscot River. At about this same time, George Clevee and Richard Tucker established a small farm on the site of present day Portland. Over the next twenty years, a community began to form around Casco Bay and, in 1658, these settlements were brought together under the control of the Massachusetts Bay Colony and given the name of Falmouth.

This 1871 rendering depicts Cleeve and Tucker establishing their farm. Courtesy Library of Congress.

The Wabanaki initially welcomed Europeans as both partners in trade for European goods and possible allies against their native enemies. Yet, these relatively peaceful relations were short-lived as increasing numbers of Europeans began to settle in the region. Tensions increased, leading to disputes over land and competition among traders. Conflict broke out in 1675, beginning several decades of violence. The English struggled to defend the scattered “ribbon settlements” of Casco Bay. In a retaliatory killing, Abenaki men raided the homestead of the Wakely family who lived on the Presumpscot River in today’s Falmouth, killing three generations of the family and taking a young girl captive. Attacks such as these eventually drove surviving settlers to completely abandon Falmouth. This cycle of violence, abandonment, tentative peace, and resettlement, repeated itself time and again.

Meanwhile, the conflict between England and France for supremacy in the New World further fueled tensions between the native population and white settlers. In an attempt at peace, and at the bequest of local Abenaki, the English agreed to build a new fort on a point of land east of the mouth of the Presumpscot River. It is believed the fort was located on the grounds of today’s Portland Country Club. Named Fort New Casco, it was conceived as a convenient place of trade for the Abenaki and headquarters for defense of England’s northern frontier. The site became a frequent venue for negotiations, councils, and treaties. Peace was reaffirmed there in June 1701 when Massachusetts officials again met with local Abenaki—Pigwacket sachems to further negotiations. To symbolize the peaceful co-existence of these two peoples, stone cairns were erected and called Two Brothers. Two islands just off shore later were named in memory of this event. Unfortunately, the peace would not last. Hostilities again surged between France and England, playing out in increased violence throughout New England.

BECOMING FALMOUTH

Falmouth was officially incorporated in November 1718. Its boundaries included today’s Portland, South Portland, Cape Elizabeth, Westbrook, and Falmouth.
Falmouth, as we know it today, was located within this larger community and sometimes referred to as New Casco. Most families chose to settle in the populated Falmouth Neck, today’s Portland, but a few carved out homes in the dangerous and unprotected area along the Presumpscot River and near Mussel Cove. From the 1720s on, settlers flooded into Maine. By 1753, 62 families called New Casco their home and, over time, residents were able to establish a secure enough economic base to support a minister, a milestone in the formation of a strong community.

The wooded lands of early Falmouth proved crucial to its early economy. Wood was harvested for building materials and fuel. Many of Falmouth’s earliest settlers established lumber mills along the Presumpscot and Piscataqua Rivers, and at Mussel Cove. In these early days, Maine’s tall white pines were its most precious commodity. Falmouth was a crucial supplier of masts for the British navy, bringing an economic boom to the settlements of Casco Bay. A large number of Falmouth residents worked in the mast trade. Some of the earliest ships built in Falmouth were mast ships, constructed to carry huge cargoes of masts to England. Today’s Falmouth boasted several shipyards, along the Presumpscot River, Skitterygusset Creek, and near Lady Cove close to Waite’s Landing.

Families settled early Falmouth. The men worked as farmers, fishermen, shipwrights, or in the lumber or mast trade. As the settlement grew, trades and occupations expanded to include bricklayers, cooper, stonemasons, and blacksmiths among others. Falmouth’s women maintained their homes, raised children, planted gardens, and tended livestock. They contributed to the domestic economy by selling the fruits of their labors, including butter, eggs, wool, yarn, and cloth. Children worked alongside their parents, helping to ensure the family’s survival in what was still very much a wilderness.

INDEPENDENCE
With the fall of Quebec City to the British in 1759, the French surrendered their foothold in the colonies. Without the aid of their French allies, the few remaining Native Americans migrated west and north. After some one hundred and thirty years since white settlers first came to Casco Bay, Falmouth residents could now live in relative peace and security.

Yet, a new battle lay on the horizon. Decades of war with France left England deeply in debt. To raise funds, the Crown levied a series of unpopular taxes upon the colonists. In 1765, residents of New Casco joined their neighbors on the Neck to protest a proposed tax on all printed paper. By 1775, in a show of resistance to colonial rule, Falmouth voted to support several boycotts of British goods. Tensions between the elite merchant class on Falmouth Neck, local militias, and the British grew, culminating in the burning of Falmouth (today’s Portland) by British forces that same year. When fighting broke out between colonists in Massachusetts and the British, Falmouth sent a company of soldiers to Boston to aid the rebellion against England. At least ten men from New Casco marched with them and served in the Revolutionary War. They are buried at cemeteries throughout Falmouth.

As the 1700s drew to a close, the mast trade dwindled and today’s Falmouth became primarily a community of farmers. Gradually, the interests of New Casco’s rural community began to diverge from the merchant economy of Falmouth Neck. The difference in priorities between these two communities became too difficult to overcome and Portland separated from Falmouth in 1786. Cape Elizabeth and South Portland had already broken away in 1765. Westbrook followed in 1814.

THE 1800S
In 1820, Falmouth voted 136 yeas to 35 nays to separate from Massachusetts and become the state of Maine. Peter M. Knight and Nathan Bucknam served as delegates to the state’s Constitutional Convention, held in Portland. John Wait was Falmouth’s first representative to the Maine Legislature.

Spinning wheels, like this one on display at the Falmouth Historical Society, were a fixture in most New England homes. Courtesy Falmouth Historical Society.
Falmouth’s close connections to Portland determined its pattern of growth. Rather than settling around a village center, residents established themselves throughout Falmouth along various roadways leading out of Portland and usually within close range of a water source and mill site. These neighborhoods boasted their own churches, schools, stores, and social clubs. The unique character of these “hamlets” remains a distinct feature of Falmouth even today.

During the 1800s, Falmouth sent soldiers to battle in three major wars including the War of 1812 and the Spanish American War. When Confederate forces fired on Fort Sumter in 1861, Maine’s governor called for the formation of ten regiments of volunteer infantry. Of the 73,000 Mainers who served in the Union Army, Falmouth sent at least 102 men to battle during the Civil War. Soldiers from Falmouth saw heavy fighting in units that sustained some of the highest percentage of casualties of all federal regiments.

By the 1900s steam boats were regularly docking at Falmouth’s Town Landing, running from Portland to Freeport and to Casco Bay’s islands. Eben Ramsdell, then the postmaster of New Casco, and an aspiring developer, divided his land into small lots, selling them to summer residents who built small cottages. Known as the Auburn Colony, the development ushered in a new era as Falmouth became known as a summer destination. Trolley service extended from Portland through Falmouth Foreside and provided Portland’s wealthy classes with easy access to Falmouth’s scenic coast and resort-like amenities. The construction of Underwood Springs Casino and Park in 1899, and the opening of the Portland Yacht Club (1885) and Portland Country Club (1913) ensured even more tourist traffic to Falmouth.

In the 1920s, Falmouth began to see a new trend called net in-migration, a population increase greater than the difference between the number of births and deaths. Demographers attribute this to the rise of the automobile, which increased mobility and allowed people to live further away from where they worked. With these changes the role of Falmouth’s town government began to expand beyond the construction and maintenance of roads and bridges, distributing aid to the poor, and overseeing schools. The Town purchased large equipment such as snow plows, buses, fire engines, and tractors, installed hydrants and electric lights, took over the care of several cemeteries, established parks, and allocated spending to promote tourism. In 1918, the Town voted to allocate money towards a commemoration of its 200th anniversary and, in 1922, funded an Old Home Days event. Increased governance required more space for Town offices and officials, thus, in 1927, a second story was added to the Town Hall originally built in 1899.

World War II brought another population boom to Falmouth. Casco Bay served as a base for America’s destroyer fleet, resulting in an influx of military personnel between 1941 and 1944, many of whom lived on the Flats. Of the 316 Falmouth residents known to have served in the war, six died in the line of duty. On the home front, the residents of Falmouth honored their service members through public displays, memorials—including the Falmouth Memorial library—and fundraisers to help the war effort. The Town also established a Civil Defense Committee which operated well–beyond the war. After the war, Falmouth veterans returned home and established by charter American Legion Post #164 in 1946.

GROWTH AND CHANGE

Falmouth experienced significant growing pains from 1947 to 1957. To address this issue, the Town organized its first Planning Board in 1948 and created its first zoning ordinance in 1952. During these boom years, the school population increased 81%, leading to the construction of a new middle and high school. Land use at this time was still primarily agricultural. The construction of the interstate highway system, including I-295 and the Maine Turnpike, physically divided the community in half, with the majority of residents living east of I-95. These new roads decreased travel time for commuters who found Falmouth’s proximity to Portland and its rural character attractive, further propelling the town’s dramatic growth.
Growth also led to the development of new recreational opportunities for Falmouth’s residents. The public pier and beach at Town Landing were improved and parking expanded. The Town maintained Skitterygusset Pond on Lunt Road and a small pond in West Falmouth near Gray Road for ice skating. In 1956, the Falmouth Playground Association formed to create a central area for sports and recreation. In conjunction with the American Legion, which provided a 99-year lease on approximately 27 acres on Depot Road, the community-wide endeavor resulted in the creation of three baseball fields, two tennis courts, a surface area for badminton, volleyball or basketball, and a skating rink. With these new public facilities in place, an athletic program began in 1957 at the junior and senior high schools.

From its incorporation in 1718, Falmouth was governed by a Town Meeting style of government. Elected selectmen formed the administrative body and residents met annually to vote on proposed budgets and policy decisions. In 1962, however, Falmouth shifted to the Council-Manager form of government used today. Under this system an elected Town Council provides political leadership while a Town Manager and other professionals are hired to implement the policies established by the Council and manage day-to-day operations.

In 1963, Falmouth’s first Town Plan noted that the town’s proximity to Portland would ensure steady residential and commercial growth for the foreseeable future. Most residents at this time found their employment and family incomes through opportunities elsewhere in the region, despite what the 1963 Plan identified as economic opportunities of “major magnitude” for employment within Falmouth. The plan proposed continued commercial development, like the new Falmouth Shopping Center on Route One and new commercial development at the intersection of Gray Road, the Falmouth Spur, and the Maine Turnpike. Additionally the plan advised industrial development both on Gray Road and on Route One north of the Spur. The plan also noted that aside from school sites, Falmouth had almost a total lack of public land, and recommended the acquisition of land for future schools, recreational and conservation areas, and municipal uses. At about the same time, community members, recognizing the need to preserve Falmouth’s history, established the Falmouth Historical Society in 1966.

A NEW CENTURY

The closing decades of the 20th century saw a significant loss in Falmouth’s farm land and forests due to increased development. Falmouth’s citizens responded to this loss by supporting the creation of a Conservation Commission and the efforts of the non-profit Falmouth Land Trust to conserve land for recreation and wildlife habitats.

In the 21st century, Falmouth continues to grow. Today, over 11,000 people make Falmouth their home. The town covers approximately 32 square miles from the coastline to rural areas further inland. As was the case in the last three centuries, Falmouth is still a vibrant and changing community.

Falmouth’s schools are ranked as some of the best in Maine, attracting families to settle here. Its proximity to Portland and ease of access to the interstate and turnpike still make it a practical choice for commuters. Today, however, more individuals come to Falmouth to work than leave it for employment elsewhere. Falmouth also boasts a significantly high number of residents who work from home or remotely. Falmouth is also home to a large and active senior community. As more residents age in place, Falmouth has met the need with the creation of specialized senior programming and a Senior Citizens Center.

As this new century of growth and change continues, residents and Town officials are more committed than ever to balancing the preservation of Falmouth’s rural character, with the need for smart growth and economic development, in order to maintain a thriving, vibrant, and attractive community for future generations.

Get Moving, Get Fit, Have Fun!
TAKE THE MOVE300 CHALLENGE

Falmouth300 challenges you to invest in YOUR future by investing in your health in 2018. The challenge is simple: Move 300 miles in 2018.

20 minutes of aerobic activity (cardio, gardening, shoveling snow, etc.) counts as 1 mile. 1 hour of activity = 3 miles. Take a walk, ride a bike, hike a trail, go for a swim. Log your miles for a chance to win prizes.

Use the log sheet on the opposite page to begin tracking your miles. Submit an online progress report every time you hit 25 miles. With each submission your name is entered into our monthly drawings for great prizes. Log 300 miles to be eligible for our grand prize drawing valued at $300.

Falmouth300 Fitness Tip: Explore300 (page 38) is full of great ways to get moving, clock miles, and get fit.

They matter to me.

I get it. Your home and car are more than just things. They’re where you make your memories and they deserve the right protection. It’s why I’m here. LET’S TALK TODAY.
The Story of Falmouth

Self-Guided History Tour

1. Wilson Tavern—The Wilson Tavern on Blackstrap Road was built in 1752 and was a stage stop on the route between Portland and Lewiston. Today it is a private home.

2. Norton Farm—Norton Farm, on Blackstrap Road, built in 1742, was originally a tavern on the road between Portland and Lewiston. From 1946 to 1976, the farm was home to the Hurricane Ski Slope.

3. West Falmouth Grange and Knights of Pythias Hall—Located on Falmouth Road just before the intersection of Gray and Mountain Road, the West Falmouth Grange and Knights of Pythias Hall was built in 1898. Two Falmouth fraternal organizations held meetings as well as plays, suppers, musical programs, and fairs here.

4. Huston School/Winn Road Fire Station—Huston School was built in 1925 on the corner of Falmouth and Winn Roads where previous schools have stood since the 1780s. It was named for Stephen G. Huston, chairman of Falmouth’s school board. In 1980, the school board voted to close the Huston school, which was demolished to make room for the newly constructed West Falmouth Fire Station.

5. Town Hall—It is not clear when Falmouth’s first Town Hall was constructed, but in 1850 it was described in town reports as “badly in need of repairs.” The current Town Hall at 271 Falmouth Road was built in 1899 and the second story added in 1927.

6. Presumpscot Falls Park—Presumpscot Falls Park overlooks the Presumpscot River on Allen Avenue Extension. As many as one thousand Wabanaki made their home in a village called Ashamahaga, at the falls of the river. Early Europeans also settled along the river, building mills and later shipyards. The river served as a power source leading to other manufacturing interests including the Smelt Hill Power Station, the first hydroelectric plant in Maine.

7. Pleasant Hill Chapel—The Pleasant Hill Chapel, on Pleasant Hill Road, was built in 1879. In 1936 the building was turned over to the Pleasant Hill Chapel Association which held events, socials and other entertainment here. In 1999, Portland Landmarks awarded Louise and Howard Rieche an award for their work in preserving the historic character and detail of the building, which is now a private residence.

8. Graves School—Graves School on Pleasant Hill Road was built in 1880 and named for Crispus Graves who willed money to the school district. It had four grades on each level and was a school until 1947. It was converted to a residence in the 1970s. The bell, purchased from the Sears and Roebuck catalog around 1911, and paid for by student-raised funds, still hangs in the bell tower.

9. Plummer Building—Falmouth High School, designed by Portland architect John P. Thomas, was built in 1931 on the corner of Middle and Lunt Roads. In 1965, the building was converted into an elementary school and renamed for the former maintenance supervisor, Sampson D. Plummer. It was used as an elementary school until 2011. The building, which is listed on the National Register of Historic Places, was converted into senior housing in 2017.

10. Oak Grove Academy/Odd Fellows Lodge—Oak Grove Academy was Falmouth’s first high school, built in 1833 and open until the early 1850s. It was moved to its current location on Checkerberry Lane (backing onto Middle Road) by a massive production involving townspeople and 75 yoke of oxen. The Independent Order of Odd Fellows, a fraternal organization, purchased the building for use as its lodge in 1885. Today it is a private residence.

11. Old D.W. Lunt School—Best seen from Middle Road, this former two-room elementary school was built in 1867 and named for the former superintendent of schools. Now a private garage, the drive and parking area were once the school’s large playground. A new Lunt School was built on Lunt Road in 1867.

Falmouth is still home to many historic sites and buildings. Use this handy self-guided tour to navigate some of them.

12. Bucknam Tavern—The Bucknam Tavern on Middle Road was built in 1776 on what was called Kings Highway and served as a post office, inn, and a stop on the stage route between Portsmouth and Bangor.

13. American Legion, Legion Fields, and Veterans War Memorial—Falmouth’s American Legion post #164 was established in 1946. The post building on Depot Road was built in the 1950s. In 1957, the Legion provided approximately 27 acres for the creation of sports fields for community use. The Veterans War Memorial was dedicated on November 11, 2014.

14. Mussel Cove Park—Mussel Cove off Old Mill Road was a site for several of Falmouth’s earliest mills, including grain and lumber. Samuel Bucknam had a mill here as early as 1710. Establishing a mill site was a priority for early settlers. Mills were necessary to hew rough timber into planking for construction and shipbuilding. As a result, the number of mills per town was well regulated and mill owners occupied lucrative positions.

15. Pine Grove School—Pine Grove School was built on Route 88 in 1916, but was destroyed by fire just days before it opened. The new one-room school opened in 1917. The grounds surrounding the building were deeded to the Town in 1924 and became Pine Grove Park. In 1941 two classrooms were added. The building served as a school until 1977. Today it operates as a preschool.

16. Pine Grove Cemetery—With some 26,000 graves, Pine Grove Cemetery, established in 1885 on Foreside Road near St. Mary’s Church, is the largest of Falmouth’s cemeteries. In the original section of the cemetery are stones dating back to the eighteenth century, including Nathaniel Jones, who died in 1745, and is listed as the oldest recorded occupant of the cemetery. Falmouth’s first minister, Rev. Ebenezer Williams, who died in 1799, is also buried here. The cemetery is also the final resting place of several Civil War veterans. Across Route 88 is World War I Soldiers Memorial dedicated to those who died serving in that conflict.

17. Gilsland Farm—For thousands of years before European settlement, the lands around Gilsland Farm were home to Wabanakis and their ancestors. In the mid-1800s, Silas Noyes bought the property and built a red, wood-framed house, which still stands today. In 1911, David Moulton purchased the property as a summer retreat and raised Jersey Cattle here. Between 1974 and 1994, Maine Audubon acquired the property through a series of gifts from Moulton’s descendants.

MARINE UNIT
The Marine Unit of the Police Department provides emergency services for the waterfront of the Town and the four islands within town borders. Located within the waterfront are public beaches, two yacht clubs, the Town Landing pier facility with its associated boat launching ramp, and approximately 1,150 pleasure and fishing boats. The Marine Unit conducts joint patrol with the U.S. Coast Guard, Cumberland County Sherriff’s Department, Maine Marine Patrol, and surrounding Harbor Masters. In addition to providing security and emergency services from this area, the division monitors parking in the two parking lots for the public beaches and pier and the inspection and placement of all moorings as well as issues annual and daily permits for the use of the facility. The marine unit also conducts water quality testing for the beaches.

THE STORY OF FALMOUTH TRAVELING EXHIBIT
This 12-panel exhibit explores Falmouth’s history, beginning with the story of its first inhabitants 12,000 years ago and concluding in modern times. Covering topics such as early settlement, recreation, governance, war, and education, the exhibit is the first-ever to explore Falmouth’s unique story. Generously sponsored by Leavitt & Sons Deli, the exhibit will be showcased throughout Falmouth in 2018, and can be displayed in the future at special events or used by the schools for educational purposes. A digital version of the exhibit will be available online via the Town’s website and an archived digital copy placed in the Falmouth Historical Society.

TOWN OF FALMOUTH: MURAL PROJECT
Hanging in the hallway on the first floor of Town Hall, the “Falmouth Mural” is one of the Town’s most intriguing mysteries. Where did it come from? Who painted it? Where did it originally hang? Plans are underway to conserve and restore this beautiful and unique representation of Falmouth’s history which dates to the 1930s, and is recognized as a significant work of art in the state of Maine. Volunteer community members are helping Town staff create a companion book highlighting the history of Falmouth depicted in the mural’s painted vignettes. The project has been supported through a generous donation by Southworth Products Corporation.

FALMOUTH HISTORICAL SOCIETY DIGITIZATION PROJECT AND ENTRY RENOVATION
Housed in the collections of Falmouth Historical Society are hundreds of images, newspaper clippings, artifacts and other items of historical significance. Newly moved to their museum on Woods Road, volunteer society members are in the process of indexing and digitizing these artifacts using archival accessioning software to ensure their preservation for future generations. In addition, through generous donations of community members, the Society will upgrade its entry way to include a new wheelchair ramp, brick pathway, lighting, and doorway to improve access to its museum and research center.

FALMOUTH MEMORIAL LIBRARY RENOVATION AND EXPANSION
Dedicated as a memorial library in 1952, the Falmouth Memorial Library will break ground on a newly expanded library in 2018. The expansion project will address structural issues, upgrade technological infrastructure, improve energy efficiency, and add 8000+ additional square feet of work, collection, and programming space, making it a modern, state-of-art facility for future generations of Falmouth residents. The volunteer expansion campaign committee recognizes the opportunity the new library affords to invest in the future of our community on the eve of its fourth century.

HISTORICAL RESEARCH AND WRITING
Many local researchers have, for years, been exploring Falmouth’s rich history. The tercentennial has inspired them to share their findings in 2018 with the community through lectures, presentations, and publications of their work. Researchers include: Marge Devine on Falmouth’s early history and its role in the French and Indian Wars up to 1763. Ford Reiche on the History of the Presumpscot River and Pleasant Hill neighborhood. Larry Dyhrberg on Danish settlements in Falmouth. Wayne Cobb on the Quakers in Falmouth, Lee Hanchett on early transportation in Maine (including Falmouth), Falmouth Congregational Church on the church’s role in Falmouth’s history, and the Tercentennial Planning Committee on a general history of Falmouth. The Falmouth300 calendar includes multiple opportunities to learn more about this important research, all of which contributes to a broader understanding of Falmouth’s place in history.

MY FAVORITE FALMOUTH: A MODERN-DAY TIME CAPSULE
Inspired by the mural project, My Favorite Falmouth invites Falmouth residents to share a version of their favorite Falmouth place through art or word. Submissions will be gathered in 2018 and compiled to form an engaging multi-media presentation celebrating today’s Falmouth and documenting this time in our community’s history. The presentation will be showcased to the public during a special event in late 2018 and made available on the Town website. An archival digital copy of the presentation will also be housed in the collections of the Falmouth Historical Society as a modern-day time capsule for future generations to enjoy. See page 16 in this guide for information on how to participate in My Favorite Falmouth.

TOWN LANDING INTERPRETIVE PANELS
Two permanent interpretive panels are under development for placement at Town Landing which will orient visitors to the scenic view of Casco Bay and provide an historic overview of Falmouth’s role in Maine’s maritime history. The panels will be installed in summer 2018.
Congratulations to the Town of Falmouth on its 300th Anniversary!

Southworth International Group has been a proud member of the Falmouth business community for nearly 25 years.

From our humble 19th century beginnings in Portland’s Old Port, Southworth has developed into a world leader in the design and manufacture of innovative material handling products and solutions. Our Falmouth headquarters is home to business development, engineering, finance, human resources, IT, marketing, product design and sales teams working daily with colleagues and customers from coast to coast and across the Americas, Asia and Europe.

While our business is global, our home is right here in Falmouth.
